JUNE ANDERSON ALMQUIST AWARD

FOR DISTINGUISHED SERVICE TO JOURNALISM

The 2006 June Anderson Almquist Award for Distinguished Service to Journalism is posthumously awarded to longtime Seattle P-I photographer Phil Webber. Webber passed away in March at the age of 67 from complications of lung disease. He was in his 50th year at the newspaper. Colleagues recall how Webber would “sniff the air” of a situation and know exactly how to get people to relax in front of the camera. In their words, he “could put a skunk at ease.”

John Dickson, photo editor of the Seattle P-I, nominated Webber for the award. In his nomination letter, Dickson wrote, “Webber chronicled Seattle history one day at a time – the Beatles, Bob Dylan, presidents and Seafair queens, the Space Needle going up and the Kingdome coming down. Phil Webber and a half century of Washington history are forever intertwined, along with the legend and photographic collection that live on.”

ABOUT JUNE ANDERSON ALMQUIST

In the late 1960s, the SPJ Western Washington Chapter established two awards: “Courage in Journalism,” an award presented at the discretion of the chapter to a news organization rather than an individual, and “Service to Journalism,” an award given to an individual for a special contribution toward the betterment of journalism within Washington state. They were later combined into one under the moniker of the “Distinguished Service to Journalism Award.” The board renamed the award the “June Anderson Almquist Award For Distinguished Service to Journalism,” following her death in 2000.

Almquist had a long career as a reporter, columnist and editor at the Seattle Times, concluding as an assistant managing editor. She also was a trailblazer in SPJ. Almquist was the Western Washington chapter’s first woman president and received the Distinguished Service to Journalism Award in 1976. She was a leader in SPJ regionally and nationally. In 1998, she received the society’s highest award for meritorious service, the Wells Key.

SUSAN HUTCHISON BOSCH AWARD

FOR OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT

The 2006 Susan Hutchison Bosch Award is posthumously awarded to local broadcasting legend Don McGaffin. McGaffin passed away last year at the age of 78. He was an award-winning television journalist who worked at KING-TV and KOMO-TV in Seattle during the 1970s and early '80s. McGaffin is perhaps most well known for his work that led to regulations on flammability in children's pajamas. He also exposed the capture and killing of Orcas for aquarium displays. A scholarship in McGaffin's name is being established at the Edward R. Murrow School of Communication at Washington State University.

ABOUT SUSAN HUTCHISON BOSCH

Susan Hutchison Bosch was an environmental affairs reporter for the Seattle P-I until December 1970. She contracted lymph cancer at the age of 18 while a student at the University of Washington and died of Hodgkin's disease at the age of 25 in 1971. Following her death the SPJ Western Washington Chapter created an award in her honor. That board said Susan Hutchison Bosch "personified intellectual honesty, deep understanding of people and their problems, abiding fairness, grace, perseverance and quiet courage. Though afflicted with Hodgkin's disease, she rejected despair and chose to live a fully committed life."

The award is presented by the board only when the recipient is judged uniquely qualified and whose work represents the qualities Bosch defined in life.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS

LYDIA WRIGHT (Almquist scholarship winner)

I am a 21-year-old junior at the University of Washington. My hometown is Bainbridge Island. I'm majoring in International Studies with a minor in Near Eastern languages and civilizations. Next year, I will finish up my undergraduate degree at UW by writing an 80+-page honors thesis on legal pluralism and the status of apostasy law in Egypt.

I'm from a journalism family and have grown up in the various newsrooms my father has worked at. I've written and edited for the UW Daily since September 2003. I plan to begin a career in foreign affairs journalism after volunteering with the Peace Corps and obtaining my masters degree.

CALEB HEERINGA

I am 22 and a senior at Western Washington University in Bellingham. I grew up in North Bend, Wa. I am double majoring in journalism and political science, and have held several positions on The Western Front, our school newspaper, including opinions editor, news editor and editor-in-chief. I am doing an internship at the Bellingham Herald this summer, and will be finishing up my political science classes next year.

MARY ANDOM

Mary is 21 years old and a junior at Western Washington University, where she writes for the student newspaper, The Western Front. She is the daughter of Eritrean refugees. Her family escaped that war-torn country 20 years ago. She grew up in White Center, what she calls the Grand Central of immigration, home to people from the Ukraine, Somalia, Guatemala, and Vietnam. She is the first in her family to attend college. In her essay, she wrote of her experience of interviewing people: "...They've opened up their souls to me and all I did was listen. I am the eyes and ears of society and a storyteller, this is what fuels my undying passion for journalism."

RACHEL THOMSON

I am 22 and a senior at Central Washington University. I grew up in Yakima, Wa. I am pursuing a double major in print and broadcast journalism. My journalism experience includes being a reporter/ editor for The Galaxy, Yakima Valley Community College's newspaper, spring 2003-spring 2004; reporter/assistant news editor The Observer, Central Washington University's newspaper winter 2005-winter 2006, and currently reporter/anchor NewsWatch, Central Washington University. I am gearing up for a reporting internship this summer at the Yakima Herald-Republic. Plans for the upcoming school year: I helped found the newly-established Central Washington University chapter of SPJ. I am currently the president. I'll be graduating in the middle of the year with my dual degree in print and broadcast journalism.

SHELLY MAY ZORNES

I am 20 years old. I was born and raised in Forks, Wa., and moved to Port Angeles within the past few years to attend college. I am currently in my second year at Peninsula College in Port Angeles, and am graduating this June with an AA transfer degree.

My interest in journalism began only about a year and a half ago. I became part of the journalism program on campus and have worked my way up to the top. I am now the managing editor of the campus newspaper, The Buccaneer.

I was accepted to Western Washington University in Bellingham and plan to transfer there this fall and pursue journalism. I am interested in all aspects of journalism; the reporting, writing, photography and page design.
